SECRETS OF THE CRAWLER CRANE!

One of the most important pieces of equipment on any construction site is the crane, just like this one! It's used to lift heavy items and move them either up or down or horizontally. ■

BOOM

The big arm of a crane is called a "boom." A boom that rotates, like this one, makes it easier to move heavy loads from place to place on the construction site.

WINCH

Cranes use a winch - a mechanical device used to pull in or let out rope or chain - to do their work. Winches can also be found in tow trucks, elevators, steam shovels and many other devices.

TRACKS

A crawler crane like this one has tracks, which help keep it stable and allow it to travel with a big load. Some real crawler cranes can lift up to 3500 tons!

FUN FACTS

Along with construction, cranes are also used to load and unload ships in harbors and assemble heavy equipment.

The first crane was built in ancient Greece in the late 6th century BC, and was powered by donkeys!

Ancient Roman cranes were powered by humans on treadwheels, great wooden wheels that were rotated by having people hold on to them and walk in a circle.

Ever wonder where the ideas for the amazing LEGO Power Miners sets came from? So did we, so we went right to the source – LEGO Design Manager William Thorogood. He shared with us some secrets of the sets and how a hole in the ground in Germany helped lead to rock monsters and more!

Q. Thanks For talking with us, William. Can you tell us a little about what a LEGO set designer does?

A. A LEGO model designer gets to create all the sets that LEGO fans get to build. We start from an early concept phase and work out a theme – like Power Miners – and the type of stories and play that will go along with that. We then think about characters and how they fit into the story, what they look like and who they are. Of course we need to think about what the coolest models in that theme could be and then create them so that fans can play out all of the stories in their heads.

We start by doing research into the theme. In Power Miners, we actually went to a mine in Germany to see what it was like underground and the type of machines they had there, then came back and tried to build some of the cool stuff we'd seen.

Q. What other LEGO themes have you worked on?

A. Before Power Miners, I worked on Vikings, Dino Attack, Exo-Force and Mars Mission.

Q. What's the process for designing a LEGO set?

A. To design a LEGO set, we usually start with a "brief." This is an explanation of how much the set should cost, and what sort of things should be in it. We then try and get inspiration from as many places as possible (Internet, books, magazines, field trips etc.) before starting to build sketch models. These are really rough concepts with real LEGO bricks and maybe some cut-up and glued parts if the bricks we need don't exist yet! We can then see if we need some new parts or new colors and design those to fit the models. Over the next couple of months we show the models to kids and shops and get their opinions on how they like them, and if they do, then we have the next cool LEGO sets for Club members and other fans to play with.

Q. What's your favorite Power Miners set so far, and why?

A. My favorite set from Power Miners in the First Half year is the Crystal Sweeper – I never get bored of collecting up the crystals (ok - rock monsters!!) with its awesome sweeper blades.

Q. Do you have a favorite Power Miners character, element or monster?

A. My favorite character is Sulfurix – I took the "Which Rock Monster Are You?" test on powerminers.lego.com and it turns out that I am most like him.

Q. What building tips can you give all the LEGO Club members reading this?

A. Try and think differently about whatever it is you are building – a lot of elements can be used in ways you wouldn't expect if you turn them around or upside down! For example, the wheels on the Thunder Driller are great as wheels, but can be anything from booster engines to a tower roof if you turn them around!
